

Change Management and E-learning

Introducing e-learning at a company or education institution always puts a heavy burden on the participants both emotionally and financially. Let's summarise the features that characterise the introduction of an e-learning framework, the problems arising and a solution to handle these difficulties.

Overviewing the current literature we try to define the roles, strategies and answers to the questions raised above.