The first part of the presentation will provide an overview about the operation and advantages of Network Admission Control, an element of Cisco's Self-Defending Network Initiative. The second part will shed some light on the most pervasive threat: the network worms and will present an effective way to protect the end systems against them.