

Recent developments in the RMKI LCG center

Abstract

The LHC Computing Grid constructed by CERN is the largest grid infrastructure project of the international research community. The LCG site operated by MTA KFKI RMKI, which is Central Europe's largest such center, started its operation back in 2004. The presentation gives an overview of last year's most important events, technical developments and achievements.